As many North Carolinians, both in and out of the State, read and admire the independent. fearless course pursued by the Sun, and are regularly electrified by its brilliant beams, I will give a verbatim speech of a "No Convention" candidate in the county of Nash. Its genuineness can be attested by numbers of respectable witnesses. The most laughable part of the affair is, however, the foct that he was elected.

ELOQUENCE FROM THE STUMP. Feller citizen, I'm proud to meet sich a honorable congregational in de gloryful ole county of Nash, an' tell you about dis 'era Convention dey is after. De greatest an' de noblest men an' lawyers, Misters Lindsay, an' Bunn, an' Batite, an' Harris, an' Williams, an' de mountain Boomer, an' de Attorney-Gin'ral, is all agin me. an' de appropriato [meaning Probate] Judge is agin me. Dey dictates to de good, hardworkin', hones' people of ole Nash how to vote away dey rights. Dey dictates to make de lily white hand of dey wives sign away dey homesteds, which de Constituallows dem not to do. All dem in de hears in' of my voice knows dis is so. Feller citizen, you hangs 'round' grog shops, an' de fust thing you knows de homestid's gone, an' your b'loved little ones is suffrin' for bread. An' don't all in de hearin' of my voice know thar was forty-six lawyers on de Dimycratic Committee what called dis 'ere Convention? Lawyers! All de la-w-y-e-r-s is most anxionsest to git dis Constitution changed to put money in dey pockets. Oh, L-o-r-d-y! An' didn't my old friend Baldy, my hon-
